RETRIBUTION.

The telegram received from our London
Correspondent yesterday, giving a list of ex-Cabinet Ministers who have been rejected at the polls, as well as the figures which we publish to-day, affords an unfailing indication of the complete rout of the Unionist Party, and the nation seems to have turned towards a hope of better things, as promised by the Liberals, with a zeal which can only be due to an intense weariness of the barren results of these latter years. Save in the field of foreign politics, the outcome of Mr. Balfour's leadership has little to show.
First and foremost, what the nation desired after the close of the Boer war was the reform of the Army. But Mr. Arnold Forster's efforts in this direction have been as hopeless as, and caused more irritation than, the ineffectual schemes of his predecessor at the War Office, Mr. Brodrick. The Education Act has only pleased the Anglican supporters of the Government, whilst it has totally alienated that large and influential body of Nonconformists who left the Gladstonian fold in vast numbers rather than allow the Protestants of Ireland to be handed over to Catholic domination. The agricultural labourer, who was roused from his indifference by promises of Old Age Pensions, has been totally neglected, while the middle classes have seen that the only results of these years of Unionist sway has been the increase and steady maintenance of the Income Tax. The country gentlemen and farmers, whose enthusiasm should have been aroused by Mr. Chamberlain's conversion to Fair Trade, have had their ardour damped by the logical refinements with which the Premier maintained—it must be confessed with wonderful skill—his equivocal position between his Free Trade and Protectionist partisans. Another item which has gone to swell the Radical ranks has undoubtedly been the slackness of the Government in dealing with the question of the unemployed, which has lately bulked so largely in the public view. Also must be borne in mind the defection of the Duke of Devonshire, Lord George Hamilton, and other prominent politicians from the proposals of the Government, for it must have undoubtedly caused a large loss of votes. "A house divided against itself cannot stand," and far above many of the matters above-mentioned which contributed to the Unionist debacle must be reckoned the consideration that the average voter declined to return to Parliament and to power a Government which bore within it the seeds of dissension. This was the dominant factor in the election which, combined with the desire to give the other side a chance, influenced the wavering whose votes always decide the day. The moral is plain and a wholesome lesson has been taught by the electorate which it is to be hoped the Unionist Party will take seriously to heart during the period that they will have to remain in the cold shade of Opposition. Let them serve their ranks and brace themselves for a struggle in which they will undoubtedly in the long run succeed.

MR. ALDERSON'S MOSQUE.

Some persons appear to have animadverted in a rather ungenerous manner upon the direction that Mr. Alderson's latest benefaction has taken. That worthy gentleman, in his desire to show a kindly feeling towards his muslim friends at Aboukir, and indirectly a mark of respect to the nation in general, recently contributed towards the construction of a Mosque.
What of that? Firstly, has he not a perfect right to do what he likes with his own money?
Secondly, what possible offence can he have given to his Christian coreligionists seeing that their churches have in many cases benefited by grants of sites from former Khedives?
The whole matter seems to us preposterous and savours of that sectarian spirit which all true lovers of our Christian Faith can only too deeply deplore.

Everything will be sold, so do not lose the opportunity. No reasonable offer will be refused.

£200 for Princess's Painting.

Some time ago Princess Louise, Duchess of Argyll, who is at present enjoying a trip up the Nile, gave a beautifully finished head, painted by herself, to Lady Dimsdale, to be disposed of for the benefit of the funds of the London Hospital, an institution in which Her Royal Highness takes a great interest. A purchaser has been found in the person of Sir Marcus Samuel, whose cheque for £200 has been handed over to the hospital by Lady Dimsdale.

S. P. C. A.

We are constantly receiving letters from our visitors during the winter months complaining of cases of cruelty to animals of which they have been eye-witnesses. They are evidently not aware that there exists in Egypt a Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, which is doing most excellent work throughout the country. If these kind friends would only accompany their letters, with a donation to the society's funds we will see that the same is forwarded to our contemporary, the "Sphinx," which has opened in its columns a list for this purpose, where the same will be duly acknowledged.

English Furniture in Egypt.

Of recent years one or two London firms have sent out to Egypt representatives seeking orders for furniture from catalogues, and have been very successful. Messrs. Davies Bryan & Co. have gone one step further. In conjunction with one of the largest and oldest established firms of actual manufacturers of furniture in London they have arranged for a choice selection of bedroom suites, sideboards, fancy and lounge chairs, etc., to be sent out and exhibited so that intending purchasers can judge for themselves the style, finish, and workmanship. At the same time, two first-class London experts will be present with drawings to take orders and give advice. For this purpose the Salon Zorani, opposite the British Head Quarters at Alexandria, has been engaged, and the exhibition, which will last a fortnight, will open its doors to the public on Saturday next, 27th inst.

The presiding judge was Ahmed Bey Abdin. Three counsel appeared for the appellants, Ibrahim Bey El-Heldawi, Ali Bey Assem, and Mustapha Bey Khadem. The hearing of the case was still proceeding as we went to press.

It is rumoured (and we reproduce the rumour under every reserve) that the daughter of Ahmed Rasteh Pasha, Vali of the Hedjaz, who recently arrived with her mother and brothers at Port Said, refused to proceed with them to Constantinople and has come on to Alexandria, accompanied by her eldest brother, who will shortly leave her and proceed to the Turkish Capital.

LUXOR HOSPITAL.

ANNUAL REPORT.

EARNEST APPEAL FOR FUNDS.

A report on the Luxor Hospital for Natives has been issued for the information of those who have shown an interest in the welfare of the institution, and who, by their subscriptions and in other ways, have furthered its work. While giving a brief account of the hospital since its foundation, it refers chiefly to the condition of the institution at the present time, and includes a description of the hospital, the staff, routine of work, the patients, book keeping, finances, etc. During the winter season many visitors at Luxor inspect the hospital, and, says the superintendent medical officer, "we are glad to welcome them at all times. For the convenience of passengers by the tourist steamers I arrange to set apart Tuesday afternoons, between 2 and 4 p.m. for this purpose."

The new floor of tiles in the operating room has proved very satisfactory, and a similar floor has now been laid in the Longmore (surgical) ward. It is hoped that funds will be available to carry out this very necessary alteration in the other wards and departments. A debt of gratitude is due to Mr. A. Urquhart for his advice and help in this and other matters. There is now a sufficient supply of hot sterilized water in the operating room for all ordinary requirements. An excellent microscope was presented to the hospital by Mr. R. Mond.

The return of in-patients for the year shows a daily average of 21, an increase over any previous year. The out-patients' return shows a falling off from 54 to 52. This, says the S. M. O., thinks, be accounted for by the fact that last winter season was a particularly healthy one in Egypt. It has been thought advisable to omit from the report a detailed list of the medical and surgical cases admitted, and that of operations performed, as the mere technical names of diseases and operations cannot be of much interest to the general reader. They have had to treat many various diseases, tropical and other. Several major operations have been performed, such as amputations, trephining, lithotomy, etc. There were also 180 ophthalmic operations carried out. Seven deaths occurred during the year due to suppurative pericarditis, concussion, burns of the whole body, pneumonia, uræmia, abscess of liver, and shock after a double operation.

The total receipts were £887. 14s. 1d., and the expenditure £954. 18s. 2d., leaving a serious deficit of £67. 4s. 1d., which it is hoped to make up this year. The committee, therefore, earnestly appeal to the general public for such donations and subscriptions as may assist to place the work upon a satisfactory financial basis, and may allow the hospital to increase its beneficent operations in a degree commensurate with the demands upon them.

The hospital has been generously supported during the past season, and its financial position has been improved, but too much confidence must not be placed in this, as so much depends on the number of visitors during the winter season; this source of income must therefore be a precarious one, and we would urge the well-wishers of the hospital to contribute by annual subscription in preference to donations.

The subscription lists at Luxor and on the Nile steamers have, as in past years, shown the interest taken in the hospital by passing tourists. A special appeal is made to the organizers of social functions at Luxor and Assuan to remember the hospital's needs. The general expenses of the hospital increase every year. Not only are wages and food higher, but there is an increasing number of patients to provide for.

THE GARRISON DIRECTORY.

We take this opportunity of informing our readers that the January edition of the Garrison Directory has just been issued to the usual booksellers for sale. Many errors which are bound to appear in a work of this nature have been corrected in the present edition, but it is regretted that some of the emendations which have been received arrived after that portion of the book had gone to press; they will therefore appear in the next issue, probably 30th February. The February edition will be sent to press on the 5th February, and the March edition, the final one for the season on the 5th March. It is hoped that residents will verify their addresses and will inform the Clerk in Charge whether the addresses as at present published are correct.

It has long been realized that there are many errors in the residents' list at the end of the book, and it is intended to omit from the March edition every name and address concerning which the Clerk in Charge shall not have received this due notification from the resident interested before the 5th March. Those who have already notified the Clerk in Charge will of course be retained in the list. The public should bear in mind that the March edition forms the basis for the early publications of next season's directory, and therefore it is very desirable that it should be as correct as possible. To make a publication of this nature of general utility requires the co-operation of everybody concerned, and it is hoped that the general public will each of them take up the matter as it concerns himself and ensure that the directory is satisfactory to him personally. It would add to the usefulness of the book if the addresses of the more important residents in Alexandria were included; therefore they are invited to send in their names.

PRE-EMPTION.

A MOSLEM LAW.

SHOULD IT BE ABOLISHED.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE EGYPTIAN GAZETTE.

Sir,—I have read with interest your two leaders on this subject, although I confess myself a little surprised at the confident and perfunctory manner in which you decide that the law should be abolished or considerably modified. You do not seem to me to have sufficiently weighed all the considerations which should operate before a legislative change such as you propose should take place. The law of pre-emption is confessedly one which is only to be found in Moslem countries, but it does not seem to be sufficiently remembered that the Mohammedan law is part and parcel of the Mohammedan religion, and any infringement or derogation from the former is regarded, and rightly so, as tantamount to tampering with the latter. The spirit which prompts the proposed modification is one the selfishness of which I cannot but deplore, seeing that there are ninety-two per cent. of the population of this country who are strenuously opposed to any such change. It is the spirit of the "Uitlander" transported from South Africa, which, if allowed full rein, would eventually bring about the terrible calamities which we have so recently seen result in the Transvaal. Of course, the circumstances here are not quite the same, for, notwithstanding the most optimistic reports, gold has not yet been found in such paying quantities as to render the efforts to capture it a sufficiently tempting bait. But if the dreams of the speculators were realized to-morrow it is my firm belief that the last glimmer of Egyptian independence would vanish for all time. However, to return from this slight digression, what I wish clearly to point out is that because a very small and insignificant number of foreigners have come into the country and are enriching themselves at Egypt's expense, whenever a law does not tally with their views of right and equity, or does not favour the class of transactions in which they are engaged, they are frantically abolishing it or modifying it beyond all recognition without the smallest concern as to whether or not it militates against the usages and traditions or even against the religion of the people to whom the country belongs—I am, etc.,

CONSTANTINOPLE NOTES.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT).

Constantinople, January 17.

The Catholic-Armenian Patriarchate here announces that it has been informed by the religious heads of the Armenian community in Egypt that Boghos Pasha Nubar has undertaken to bear the cost of the reconstruction of the Armenian College in Cairo. As your readers are aware, Boghos Pasha Nubar has also decided to build a technical school in Cairo at a cost of a million francs.

General Constantinides, ex-Minister of War for Roumania, arrived here yesterday on his way to Alexandria.

M. Maximoff, formerly Russian Diplomatic Agent in Cairo and now Minister at Cettigue, arrived here yesterday from the latter city.

PRICES IN PORT SAID.

Our Port Said Correspondent writes that passengers often complain of the exorbitant prices they are charged in Port Said. It is certainly an imposition to charge a passenger sixpence for a cup of coffee, whilst a resident only pays three shillings. It is rumoured that a new café and tea-house à la Japonaise will open in the street facing the harbour, at which cheaper prices will obtain, as 3d. for a cup of tea. This will be an innovation for Port Said. No doubt the idea will be successful if well carried out.

SUDAN UNDER ISMAIL.

A PANEGYRIC.

DR. ABBATE PACHA'S BROCHURE.

The opening of the Nile-Red Sea Railway, whereby becomes realised one of the grandiose dreams of a former monarch of Egypt, is an opportune occasion for the publication of "Le Soudan sous le règne du Khédive Ismail," by H. E. Dr. Abbate Pacha. The author, in a well-printed and neatly-bound brochure, pays a touching tribute to that ill-fated Prince whose good qualities, he assures us, so far outweighed his failings as to render the historian imbued with a sense of impartiality almost oblivious of everything save the grandeur of the work inaugurated and achieved under his auspices. Throughout Abbate Pacha's luminous pages there runs a rich vein of eloquence and a wealth of philosophic epigram. For an octogenarian this opuscula is a veritable "tour de force" whetting our appetites for the more ambitious "Egyptiaca," which is announced soon to follow. The secret of personal attraction exercised by Ismail Pacha can only be understood by those who belonged to his immediate "entourage," though that indefinable quality, according to all accounts, has descended unimpaired to the present occupant of the Khedivial throne. The charm and fascination of the grandfather seems to have been inherited, without other less desirable attributes, by Abbas Helwy, to whose patriotism and enlightenment Dr. Abbate pays fitting homage. Strange to say, for one past life's meridian, Dr. Abbate is no more "laudator temporis acti." Indeed, the most remarkable feature of this jewelled opusculum is its unalloyed optimism, the confidence in Egypt's future, which is present from beginning to end. The sole note of regret sounded is Dr. Abbate's lament that with Ismail Pacha, as with the world in general,

The evil that men do lives after them,
The good is oft interred with their bones.

Rumour has it that "The Story of the Khedivate" may shortly be published in a cheap edition, to which the present pamphlet will form an appropriate pendant. Abbate Pacha stands not alone in his panegyric. A publicist from a colder clime fell equally under the seductive spell of Egypt's former Sovereign, as will be readily observed by all who peruse Mr. Edward Dickey's brilliant volume. Happily, we have still amongst us and, at present, in the very city of Cairo, two veteran champions of a romantic and exciting period of Egypt's history; the one, to arouse in lofty and vigorous strains the youth of this country to a recognition of the course of events which have led to their present prosperity, the other, to point out to his compatriots the direction in which Egypt's true destiny lies.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL.

Their Royal Highnesses the Archduke and Archduchess of Austria, who are travelling incognito under the name of the Count and Countess Sala, left Shaila to-day on Cook's steamer Memnon on their way to Khartoum.

T. R. H. Don Carlos, Duke of Madrid, and the Duchess of Madrid and suite, arrived in Cairo yesterday and are staying at Shepherd's Hotel.

The Duke of Madrid left Alexandria for Cairo by his 4.25 p.m. train, to which had been attached a special saloon by order of his Highness the Khedive. The Duke was accompanied by his aide-de-camp, General Don Rodrigo de Medina y Esquivel, and his suite.

Among the latest arrivals at Shepherd's we notice: Prince Hanan, from Berlin, the Barons du Breton, Count and Countess Kneburg, of Vienna, Baron Pogrel, Mr. and Mrs. Barry Wall, of New York, and friends, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton, of San Francisco, etc., etc.

Brig-General G. M. Bullock, C.B., commanding the Army of Occupation, will come down to Alexandria from Cairo to-morrow, accompanied by Major G. C. Knight, D.A.A. and Q.M.G., on inspection duty.

Mr. A. Quith, son of the Hon. Herbert Asquith, K.C., the newly appointed Chancellor of the Exchequer, is staying at the Continental Hotel. We understand that Mr. Asquith has come to Egypt in connection with the celebrated case of the Princess of the late Khedive Ismail's family against the Egyptian Government. The Hon. Herbert Asquith, it will be remembered, had to return a brief for this case, which was marked 10,000 guineas, in consequence of his ministerial appointment.

Sir William Reine Ward, K.C.S.I., and Lady Ward, who arrived in Egypt last week, are staying in Cairo with Sir Edwin and Lady Palmer, Lady Ward being Sir Edwin's sister. Sir William Ward is the son of the Hon. J. P. Ward and nephew of the third Viscount Bangor. He entered the Bengal Civil Service in 1861, from 1888 to 1891 he was Judicial Commissioner of Lower Burma, and from the latter year until 1896 he was Chief Commissioner of Assam.

We are sorry to learn that Sir Edwin Palmer's condition is not at all satisfactory, and that there is some cause for anxiety. A bulletin issued this morning by Dr. Milton and Dr. Hess, reports that his condition is not so good as yesterday. His temperature has not come down and he has somewhat lost strength.

Maitre Carton de Wiart left Cairo this morning for Paris, where he has gone on important business. He does not expect to be detained there more than a few days and will return immediately to Cairo.

Captain Ekstrom, commandant of the Swedish frigate Freja, gave a luncheon on board yesterday before the vessel left for Constantinople. Among the guests were: Mr. C. Belinfante-Ostberg, Swedish Diplomatic Agent, H.E. the Governor, Rear-Admiral Sir Maxine Blomfield, Judge and Mme. Montan, Vice-Consul and Mme. Silfverhjelm, Mme. Hess, etc.

Lieut.-Col. Cox and the officers of the 2nd Battalion Royal Irish Rifles will be "at home" at the Ghazieh Sporting Club on the 3rd prox., on the occasion of the regimental sports.

M. de Guerville, the author of "New Egypt," has left the Savoy Hotel for a stay of a week or so at Mena House.

Mr. Barton Holmes, the famous American lecturer who has "out-Stoddard-Stoddard" in his lectures on "Traveling," had nine moving picture cameras operating on the scene of the procession of the Sacred Carpet. He has chartered a steam-dababieh for a Nile trip with the object of procuring a complete picture of the voyage from Cairo to Assuan, and other moving pictures which he has secured in this country include the Camel Corps at drill, and a trip through a desert Wadi.

Mr. Acton Adams, who is staying at the Continental Hotel, is a well-known figure in Australasian society. He is a widower and very wealthy, having amassed a large fortune in sheep farming in New Zealand. He is an all-round sportsman and is also very keen on bridge, which he plays exceptionally well.

Captain Adams, R.E., general manager of the Delta Light Railway Company, Limited, arrived at Cairo from India yesterday.

OUR PARIS LETTER.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

Paris, January 16.

It might be a summer's afternoon on the Riviera, so kindly are the conditions: a blue sky and hot sun, and a gentle breeze that has no power in it to stir the slightest twig on the Boulevard trees. All the world promenades. The Champs Elysées is a mass of vehicles: cars, motor cars, and the democratic taximeter, carrying the Parisian to the pleasant alleys of the Bois. You would suppose there was, no particular thought for the morrow, no care behind the horseman. Nevertheless, France has sufficient "sur les bras" for a single week. Algeria, the election of the President, complications with Venezuela. Probably, as I write, the squadron of La Martinique is getting up steam and pointing its bows towards Southern America. The recall of M. Taegny, the French Chargé d'Affaires, is momentarily expected. As to that nearer matter, the Presidential election, the Déclaration des Gueches has constituted itself into a vigilance committee sitting permanently, so as to watch the knavish tricks of the other side. Need one recount all the "potins" of the hour? How that the handsome and eloquent Paul Deschanel will certainly come in at the last moment with a tremendous "coup," and that other Paul—Paul Doumer—will have prodigious sums at his disposal to buy the support of the Senate and Chamber! Meanwhile, M. Loubet is still considered a possible candidate by some, even though the hoarse-throated "craquelot" shouts: "Dernier testament de M. Loubet: dix centimes!"

This afternoon, at the Luxembourg, 649 Republican senators and deputies took part in the rehearsal vote, and M. Fallières emerged triumphant from the ordeal in the first and only ballot. The figures are: M. Fallières, 416; M. Doumer, 191; others, 42 in all. So M. Fallières has been proclaimed the candidate of the Republic. Altogether there were 717 members of Parliament at this meeting, all the Ministers being of the number, as well as M. Ribot, M. Brisson, M. Combes, M. Méline, M. Millerand, and other well-known statesmen. M. Léon Bourgeois had, previously protested against a distribution of voting tickets bearing his name, saying that he had had nothing to do with it, and had posted up a notice to that effect on the door of the disused chapel of the Palace where the meeting took place. There were, of course, no speeches, and equally of course, neither M. Fallières nor M. Doumer put in an appearance. The success of M. Fallières now seems certain.

To show the state of public opinion about the prospects of the election, it may be worth while to mention the betting at the Bourse. In a kind of pari-mutuel which has just been organised, M. Fallières has been chosen 790 times, M. Loubet 300, and M. Doumer 210. As nothing about a serious emergency would make M. Loubet come forward as a candidate again, the betting shows that M. Doumer's chances are thought to be very small indeed. For M. "X."—that is to say, for an unknown candidate, whose name is not given at all—105 tickets have been taken. Besides these, 25 have been taken for M. Brisson, and 22 for M. Adolphe Carnot. About 15 other names have been entered, but none of them attracts more than three or four votes.

On Thursday Princess Henry of Battenberg and her charming daughter Princess Eva, the future bride of the young King of Spain, visited Versailles, and were shown over the chateau. They also inspected the right wing, where an army of workmen was busy getting ready that part of the building for the election of the new President of the Republic. Everything is arranged in luxurious style. The main hall is very handsome, and the presidential chair, with its red damask and gold, lends a bright note of colour to the presidential tribune. All over the building, in the numerous side-rooms, there is a wealth of green-covered tables, and everywhere across on the walls direct depictions and senators to the post office, "salle des gâteaux," "salle des secrétaires," smoking room, buffet, &c. A large number of telephone cabins have been provided, and in order that the din from the lobbies may not interfere with conversation these are shut off with double doors. In the temporary post-office labels point out the various counters where stamps may be bought, money orders procured, and registered letters attended to. It seems that French politicians cannot be three hours anywhere without sending or receiving a registered letter. But if previous Presidential elections are anything to go by, the large majority of those who will be at Versailles to-morrow will be there for anything but the election. It is a pleasant little trip out of Paris, and as it only happens once every seven years it has the added attraction of novelty.

Algeria still gives pause and exhausts printers' ink in the front columns of the journals. The interview rages like the pestilence. No one says Count Tattenbach sought on the wing towards Algeria—the perch of all good diplomats at this hour—could not conceal his good humour and amiability. "Peers of complications? All nonsense. If only France behaves nicely, then everything will be well." Other journalists' investigations have been tapping the ground at Madrid, where it was feared that water-renewal currents had been working mischief. But here, again, the answer is comforting and disarming. Spain and Spanish policy stand where they did as regards France. There remains the journey of Prince Bulow to Rome—for reasons of health. Some unbelieving people will read political considerations into it, but the great standard of France is the Marquis Visconti Venosta.

In an article entitled "In Case of War," the "Boho de Paris" says: Russia, who is France's friend and ally, is fully resolved to accept her portion of the responsibilities and to make the necessary efforts to support France, despite the fact that her resources have been weakened by the war. From information obtained in well-informed circles, it appears that in the event of war between France and Germany, Russia will be able to place on her Western frontier in a comparatively short space of time fourteen army corps, which would be brought up to full strength by the mobilisation of the reserves. This means that Russia could place on the frontier a force consisting of 518,000 infantry, 52,000 cavalry, and 1,539 guns, without including any Cossacks or Cossack troops. This, says the "Boho de Paris," constitutes an imposing force which it would be wrong to ignore.

The courageous article in Friday's "Pall Mall Gazette" has not passed unnoticed. The "Boho de Paris" devoted to it a column of extracts and comments. The article said what needed to be said. English unity of policy with France cannot be too much insisted upon. Every despatch from the correspondents at Madrid refers, with gratitude, to the support given to M. Réveil by Sir Arthur Nicholson. A fortunate fate, in the shape of an alphabetical order, places them side by side at the board of conference. It is a happy augury. The English elections are watched here, perhaps wrongly, but at any rate, naturally, for some sign of the international temper of the British people. Even the intelligent Frenchman is hardly conspicuous for any great perception of English politics, but he believes he sees in this startling defeat of Mr. Balfour something like a new triumph for the "Napoleon sans victoires" as the dominant figure in Europe has been happily named. The interpretation may be quite mistaken, but it is understandable.

A few years ago but dim and hazy descriptions of the great electoral fights in England would have reached this side of the Channel. It is otherwise now. Long, descriptive accounts of the behaviour of the election crowds in Fleet-street and the Strand garrison the Paris press to-day. The foreign observer sees in it some likeness to the excitability of the French in similar circumstances. People to whom I have spoken this afternoon inquire what are the chances of Mr. Chamberlain. Will this great land-mark of Protection be temporarily obliterated by the rising tide of Liberalism? Naturally, the critics who exalt at John Bull's new phase are the advanced party in the State; but their counsels are apt to be dangerous, as we know by sad experience. Beware, therefore, of such congratulations O British people and hasten to adjust the balance.

The step just taken by the Government for enlarging the note issue of the Bank of France, brings out into strong relief the great and steadily increasing measure of French industrial and commercial prosperity. The present limit of the note issue is two hundred million pounds, guaranteed on bullion and on short-dated securities. This limit, though only fixed as giving a wide margin so recently as 1897, has almost been reached. To be precise the notes in circulation were within £3,500,000 of the limit, or an increase of notes in circulation since 1897 of about £48,000,000. In 1897 the bullion in the vaults was about £124,000,000. It is now £32,000,000 more, and is increasing at such a rate that the Bank is faced with the prospect of being reduced to payments in specie. To avert such a danger, the note issue is to be increased by £32,000,000.

A great sensation has been caused in aeronautical circles, says the "Boho de Paris," by the purchase by M. Arnold Fordey, acting in the interest of several Parisian persons, of the patent of an aeroplane, invented by the brothers Wright, of Dayton (U.S.A.), for the sum of 1,000,000 francs (£40,000). This aeroplane will, it is said, compete in a few months' time for the Dantchakow prize of 50,000 francs and is to be employed by the French Army. Interviewed by the "Boho de Paris," M. Fordey said he had seen the invention in operation, and was astounded at the manner in which it manoeuvred. It solved the problem of flight by a body heavier than the earth's atmosphere.

One of the complicated problems of universal compulsory military service is just now greatly exercising the professional and official classes. The problem has been raised in the guise of a case in point. Suppose, it is said, that a University professor enjoying a State salary is suddenly summoned to the ranks on mobilisation, what would be his position in respect of emoluments? Would he enjoy the proportionate scale of long furlough, or be reduced to the penny a day of the ranks? Again, should he fall in battle, would his family enjoy the pensions that would have been theirs had their breadwinner met with a fatal accident, or would they be reduced to the scant merces shown by the State towards the relatives of the common soldier? The answer in all these cases is that for no more than Hodge, the ploughman, and the news has been received with some shock.

A discovery of deep interest for the world of art has just been made here. There has just been brought to light the whole of the series of etchings on copper executed by Rembrandt, and known as the Mariette collection. This fine series of the great painter's minor works had for many years been lost. The discovery has at length been made by a French art periodical, which has handed over the whole collection to the Ryks Museum of Amsterdam. The gift is one of great magnificence. No fewer than 85 plates comprise the series, many of them the finest that ever came from Rembrandt's brain. They include such portraits as that of Saskia, Doctor Faustus, the Descent from the Cross, and the Restoration of Lazarus.

That humble handmaiden of fame, the Press-cutting agency, has at last managed to raise around itself a question of sufficient practical interest to be worth a test case in litigation. It was here in Paris, and the "Emperor of the Sahara," fittingly enough, was the central figure in the case. "His Majesty" has flung money so freely that a few pounds more or less for the joy of knowing what the world says about him should seem to be of small account. But the worm will turn at last, and for M. Lebandy the turning point came when, after paying some £50, he received another account for £10 without having given specific orders for further work. He took the question to law, and the plaintiff agent has just been non-suited, the judge holding that in the absence of an express order no claim could arise.

The lighter side of life is represented by talk of a decoration for Sarah Bernhardt. There is a doubt whether she will have the red ribbon, after all. The last recipient—Mlle. Bartet, of the Comédie Française—has created a precedent from which it would appear to be difficult to escape, seeing the artistic eminence of "La Divine." But every "sociétaire" of the House of Molière is, in a manner of speaking, a functionary of the State; therefore, upon that footing, Sarah's chances are but slender. Mais nous verrons: the last word is always with the Government, and not with the Council of the Order, rather hostile, than otherwise, to the proposition. Another item of interest is the proposal to invite a representative young woman of London to take part in the procession of M. Carême. Who will be the London "Queen"? A singular honour, surely, to represent the "Estimate." For the first time in history, the Queen of the Halls will be neighboured by the Queen of Covent Garden.

A duelling engagement that was intended to be tragic ended in a pleasant comedy in Paris on Saturday. The party presented themselves in form at the Grand Hotel, which is the spot to which all good duellists go for harmless excitement, and were not only admitted, but conducted to the spot where honour could be satisfied without interruption. But somehow, having gone so far, the concierge was seized with a qualm, and after looking the combatants in, fetched the police in all haste. To their surprise, however, they found on arrival that the duellists had vanished, while a ladder against the enclosure wall indicated the line of escape. Following up this clue the concierge found principals and seconds drinking together in the greatest hilarity outside a neighbouring café. They had "made it up" while the pistols were being loaded, and the concierge had great difficulty in escaping from the reconciliation revels.

The ex-promoter of the Comédie Française has committed suicide. The poor man had been an inmate of Sainte Anne's lunatic asylum for some time. At half past eight o'clock each evening, he fancied he heard the three traditional knocks which, in a French theatre, herald the going up of the curtain. He would become very excited, and declare that the company was waiting for him. "And what will M. Monnet-Sally say?" he would exclaim. Stories are told of other promoters. There was one good man in a suburban theatre whose own private troubles were revived every time the innocent heroine was carried off by the villain of the piece. "Ah! the sounder!" he would shout from his box; "Can they not see what he is doing?" He would give audible warnings to the husband to keep his wife clear from all intrigues against her fidelity. These remarks "hors texte" were a little embarrassing to the actors and actresses upon the stage, who were never quite certain which belonged to the book, and which was the invention of the "souffleur." Another member of this humble profession was a great Nimrod. His days were spent in shooting. On many occasions, he arrived at the theatre with his bag of partridges and ground game. In an evil moment, he brought, also, his retriever. The animal crouched quietly enough at his feet in the little box below the stage, until he was agitated by the behaviour of the hero, and commenced to bark furiously. It was pointed out to the dog-owner that he was paid to prompt and not to bark, and the spaniel came no more to the theatre.

GERMAN CAPITAL IN EGYPT.

The German Government recently issued a list of places abroad in which German capital was engaged at the end of 1904, and this affords an intelligent insight into the enterprise of commercial men in the Fartherland. It is interesting to note that it is to America, and particularly the United States and Canada, that the Germans have directed the greatest share of attention, and Africa, in which Egypt is included, comes next with a total capital invested of nearly £68,000,000.

In Mexico and in certain South American States, the Germans are beginning to feel the competition of the Yankees, who have practically gained the monopoly of transport undertakings and also of the export market; but in Chili, Brazil, and Argentina the position of the German is still very strong. In these countries the German electrical industry, strongly assisted by the German banks, has found a vast field of operation.

The following is the list, and refers to the capital represented by the assets of German commercial houses abroad at the beginning of last year:—

|                                   |             |    |             |
|-----------------------------------|-------------|----|-------------|
| Turkey (Egypt excluded).....      | £15,000,000 | to | £17,000,000 |
| N. Africa (including Egypt).....  | 20,000,000  | to | 25,000,000  |
| West Africa.....                  | 60,000,000  | to | 67,000,000  |
| East Africa.....                  | 10,000,000  | to | 12,000,000  |
| Arabia, Persia, India.....        | 8,750,000   | to | 10,000,000  |
| Southern Asia.....                | 15,000,000  | to | 22,500,000  |
| Eastern Asia.....                 | 10,000,000  | to | 15,000,000  |
| Australia, Polynesia.....         | 15,000,000  | to | 20,000,000  |
| Central America, West Indies..... | 10,000,000  | to | 15,000,000  |
| South-West America.....           | 20,000,000  | to | 27,500,000  |
| South-East America.....           | 10,000,000  | to | 15,000,000  |
| United States, Canada.....        | 125,000,000 | to | 150,000,000 |

Aggregate total from.....£402,500,000 to £411,500,000

Having regard to German capital invested in foreign stocks and securities, an inquiry made amongst the principal German banking institutions elicited the result that the aggregate may be estimated at least at £20,000,000 of which about £12,000,000 is sunk in stocks and shares outside Europe and from £200,000,000 to £300,000,000 invested in Russia and in countries of the Near East.

MORE NEW MILLS IN LANCASHIRE

Mr. William Tattersall, of Manchester, has issued a further list of new mills that are being erected in the County Palatine. This gives details of 66 spinning factories, containing 8,850,000 spindles, and the cost of erection is set down at seven millions sterling. It is estimated that employment will be found for 13,000 operatives. Seventeen of these mills have recently got to work, the others being in the course of erection, and most of them will be completed by October next. The number of new looms is put down at 45,000. These will cost about £1,250,000, and will find work for close upon 13,000 hands.
